

The Great Sled Race

One day Gill and her best friend Tom were at her house watching T.V. when suddenly... Crash! A sledder slammed face first into the wall outside Gill's house. "Owww!" cried the sledder in pain. "What happened?" Gill and Tom said in unison as they scrambled out the house. "It's nothing really, I just bumped my head." "What were you doing anyway?" Tom asked. "I was sledding down the hill when I accidentally took a wrong turn," said the sledder still a bit confused. "Say, that sounds like fun. Do you want to go sledding, Gill?" asked Tom. "Sure I would like that, how about you?" Gill asked the sledder. "Oh no thanks, I have had enough sledding for one day," the sledder said wearily.

Once Gill and Tom were at the top of the hill, they sat on their sleds and they were off!

They zipped down the hill with maximum speed, laughing so hard their eyes watered. "Weeee!" Jill screamed with delight. All was fine until...
Whoosh! Three figures passed Tom and Jill as they were heading down the hill.

Tom and Jill stopped immediately. "Was that a moose?" Tom asked. "Yeah, there was also a raccoon and a squirrel," said Jill "and were they skiing?" "Yes, yes they were!" The two stood in complete silence for several minutes staring at each other in wonder until Tom said, "that has to be the weirdest thing that I ever saw in my entire life!" "Wow!" "Did that really just -" "I bet you & can catch up with them" Jill said interrupting Tom. "Do you want to come?" Jill asked. "Uh... Sure, Gill be right there," Tom said extremely confused. Gill quickly jumped onto her sled and sped down the hill trying desperately to catch up with the trio.

When Gill was finally within five metres of the animals, it became an all or nothing sled race between her and them. Gill rocketed down the hill leaving everyone in her dust, until it was just her and the squirrel racing head to head for the gold. Both of them going so fast everything around them looked like a blur. They kept going at it until the end of the hill, and... it's a tie! Everyone crashed into a giant snow bank, and Gill could not help but to giggle. Eventually Tom caught up, and he too crashed into the snow bank. "That was so awesome!" Tom exclaimed, and with that they called it a day.

The End!

By: Jarod Liebenberg